OSHwiki: connecting the OSH community
Five reasons to join

1. Professional benefit
By commenting and building upon original articles, you will be involved in knowledge development.

2. Personal development
You will gain recognition in the OSH community through the content you produce; you can demonstrate your expertise on a particular OSH topic.

3. Networking
You can contribute and debate new content on specific topics, connecting you with co-authors. You can also recommend/refer to potential new authors.

4. Synergy
You can link your contributions to the OSHwiki with your other tasks, or those of your organisation. Or you can re-utilise the content you produce for other purposes.

5. Worldwide reach
The OSHwiki is a global OSH community which cooperates with OSH institutes from all over the world in a common OSHwiki; the platform works in all languages.

OSHwiki is the new way to network online with the rest of the Occupational Safety and Health (OSH) Community. Professionals can add to the body of OSH knowledge quickly and easily, edit content jointly with others in their networks or create new content on topics that interest them.
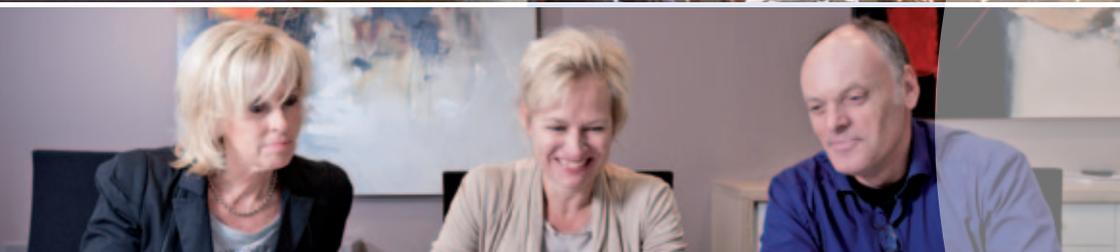

OSHwiki aims to be an authoritative source of information that is easily updated and reaches beyond the OSH community.

We need your help to grow the OSHwiki!

Who can contribute?

Anyone from recognised professional and scientific organisations is eligible.

How do I join?

To register as an accredited author, contact: info@oshwiki.eu

The OSHwiki can be found online at www.oshwiki.eu

Official launch:
XX World Congress on Safety and Health at Work, Frankfurt, 25-28 August 2014.

OSH WIKI
Networking knowledge